Recorded votes beat quiet renewals

Tip: swap bracketed fields. Cite numbers carefully. End with the cancel / yearly-vote ask.

Mayor Crawford, members of City Council. My name is [Your Name], and I live in Crossville.

A quiet renewal is not consent. It is how unpopular surveillance programs avoid public oversight.

The national cancel wave exists because residents showed up, emailed, and made officials own a recorded vote. In Warrenton, VA, after the town council approved an Amazon data center over packed opposition, voters later replaced the members who backed that vote. That fight reminded politicians that voters remember. Flock cameras are every bit as unpopular as those data centers.

Crossville should not bury this on a consent agenda. Cancel or renew should be debated in public, with residents allowed to speak, and then decided by a recorded vote.

This is how you show respect and common courtesy to the voters who elected you. Do not mistake quiet for consent. Many residents only learn these cameras exist when a scandal hits the news or a neighbor or friend points them out. Once they are aware, they are disgusted. They wonder how these cameras got approved in the first place, and they want them gone.

THE ASK (say this)

My ask is clear. Cancel Crossville's Flock contract and remove the cameras. Require a public hearing and a recorded City Council vote before any surveillance equipment is ever proposed again. If you will not cancel yet, take a recorded yes-or-no vote each year before any renewal, with no automatic renewal that skips a public vote, and publish monthly use reports the public can check. Thank you. I yield.
