DETAILED SUMMARY

Automotive journalist Joel Feder and his wife were boxed in by four Plymouth PD squad cars outside a Kohl's after Flock ALPR alerts on a Range Rover press loaner. Police had tracked the vehicle for days via Flock. Root cause: a lost NJ manufacturer plate reported in California was entered into NCIC incomplete as 34 DTM (missing small middle digits); Feder's plate was 34 10 DTM, and Flock OCR also missed those characters. VIN clean; original plate was lost, not stolen; ~1 hour detention.

DETAILED SUMMARY

Internal-affairs documents obtained by ABC13 and summarized by Chron show a Fort Bend County Sheriff's Office lieutenant searched one woman's license plate about 148 times and another plate about 41 times from 2022 through 2025. The lieutenant admitted the searches were not for official sheriff's-office purposes. The woman reported fearing stalking after checking Have I Been Flocked. Reporting says the agency found a general-orders violation and imposed a two-day suspension.

DETAILED SUMMARY

Savannah Police announced that an internal audit under Flock's Audit Assistance Program flagged potential misuse by four officers and two civilian employees. All six were placed on administrative leave July 31, 2026, and cases were referred to the Georgia Bureau of Investigation. Alleged searches included personal acquaintances and family members; one officer allegedly shared SPD Flock access with personnel from an outside agency. On August 7, 2026, SPD announced all six employees had been terminated after the administrative investigation found policy violations. GBI's criminal investigation remains ongoing; names withheld pending that probe and appeals.

DETAILED SUMMARY

On July 29, 2026, CMPD Officer Seth Daniel Elliott was arrested and charged with illegally accessing a government computer. An SBI affidavit summarized in local reporting says a friend who was the target of a Watauga County drug investigation asked Elliott to run a plate; investigators allege Elliott queried Flock Safety and CJLEADS, learned it belonged to an undercover officer's vehicle, and relayed that over Snapchat. CMPD placed Elliott on unpaid leave and revoked database access. On August 4, CMPD released its Flock MOU under press pressure: CMPD does not own Flock cameras but gets network access (including limited community devices) via the MOU; the trial period was extended past May.

DETAILED SUMMARY

Mooreville Police Chief Ron Campurciani said a Flock audit found Officer Elizabeth Anne Snowman accessed the LPR system 31 times to track her boyfriend's ex-wife, including at least two off-duty accesses. Most searches allegedly listed motor-vehicle infractions as the reason. Snowman, 36, was arrested Aug. 5, 2026, and charged with misdemeanor accessing computers. The chief said the audit flagged about 11 officers' activity and that roughly 10 other cases were under review (about three described as more serious), with possible additional charges. Same-week reporting described Snowman as no longer with MPD. Department will require case numbers on future Flock searches. Allegations pending for others.

DETAILED SUMMARY

The Georgia Bureau of Investigation arrested former Polk County Police Officer Tracey Royston, 51, of Cedartown, on August 7, 2026, on four misdemeanor counts of misuse of a license plate reader system. At the time of the alleged crimes she served on the Northwest Georgia Drug Task Force (managed by the GBI) and had access to Cedartown Police Department's Flock Safety system. Cedartown police asked the GBI to investigate on July 31, 2026. GBI's preliminary investigation indicates Royston accessed the Flock system multiple times between 2024 and 2025 for non-law-enforcement purposes. She was booked into Polk County Jail. Routine audit anomaly found Aug. 6, 2026 (details not public)

DETAILED SUMMARY

Chandler Police Chief Bryan Chapman said a routine audit of Flock data found an unexplained "anomaly in the use of the Flock system that could not be explained through standard police action" on August 6, 2026. On August 7 the city announced it was ending its about $153,000 Flock contract (about 40 cameras). Chapman said an internal investigation would determine whether Flock was used inappropriately and that discipline would follow if so; he declined specifics. Mayor-elect Matt Orlando said to his knowledge only one employee was involved. City statement said no resident's privacy had been compromised. Allegations under investigation, not a finding of guilt.
