Swapping the logo does not restore our rights

Mayor Crawford, members of City Council. My name is [Your Name], and I live in Crossville.

Some will say the fix is to quit Flock and buy Axon, or another plate reader. That is not privacy.

The risk is the tool: a searchable log of where cars go, with weak rules on who can search. Cities that "quit Flock" and install Axon keep the same warrantless mass scanning under a new company name. Knoxville PD's Axon path does not erase the East Tennessee network problem for Crossville drivers whose plates still enter shared systems elsewhere.

Leaving Flock should mean ending the surveillance tool, not quietly rebranding the same mass surveillance under another logo.

Do not trade one logo for another and call it reform. If a future agenda swaps Flock for Axon without a real public debate, that is the same problem with a new company name. The risk is the tool, not the logo stamped on the device.

THE ASK (say this)

My ask is clear. Cancel Crossville's Flock contract and remove the cameras. Require a public hearing and a recorded City Council vote before any surveillance equipment is ever proposed again. If you will not cancel yet, take a recorded yes-or-no vote each year before any renewal, with no automatic renewal that skips a public vote, and publish monthly use reports the public can check. Thank you. I yield.
